Series Overview

In April 2024, online education leaders from three colleges are sharing perspectives on launching, maintaining, and evolving a Student Support Hub, an important resource conceived by the CVC as a critical element of an equitable online ecosystem, in two webinars.

Webinar 1, Introducing the Student Support Hub, was held 4/10.

This is Webinar 2, Maintaining Robust Access to Services Through the Student Support Hub

Find resources for both webinars at tinyurl.com/CVCHub-Info

Today

- Recap of key ideas from the first webinar
- Sharing data from our survey (tinyurl.com/Hubs-CCC)
- Details on our hubs: services, support, maintenance, technologies, staffing, realities
- Further discussion, perhaps some participant sharing of their Hubs

Recap of Webinar 1

Student Support Hub was conceived as a key element of an online ecosystem supporting student completion and success

Original Hub was a collaboration between CVC-OEI and MiraCosta College, launched in 2019

Hub Design Principles

- Action-oriented
- Minimal clicks
- Consistent experience
- Equitable design

Who maintains Hub pages varies but is often DE faculty/staff when the Hub is in Canvas

Some colleges have forms and workflows, but most don't have a clear process for Hub maintenance

Many colleges indicate they are continuing online services that expanded during Covid-19, and that simply having a Hub is a win

Challenges: tracking data, maintaining information, adding services

MiraCosta College

Services

Academics: Library and Tutoring

Holistic Support: Academic Counseling,
Career Coaching, Basic Needs,
Health Services

Tech Support

But not A&R, Financial Aid, SAS ...

-  IT Help Desk
Get help with your MiraCosta technology questions.

How have services been added?

Pre-launch: Very intentional communication, outreach, meetings

Post-launch: Totally idiosyncratic

But ...

Scene: Last week's Student Success, Equity, and Guided Pathways Advisory group Zoom meeting

Context: Discussion of how students engage with a “cohesive support experience” across their student journey

Me: “We continue to move toward “online pathways” and it's so important to make sure there's not an assumption that some of these [supports] require on-campus presence”

Zhenya (she/her) Lindstrom to Everyone 2:30 PM

To add to Jim's point, the bundling of supports for a fully online program would also embed student and academic services that are available in the online modality

Wendy (she/her) Stewart to Everyone 2:31 PM

I agree Zhenya, we are having discussions about not just brick and mortar centers, but also how can we create parallel digital centers

Let's talk about how that relates to our Student Support Hub in Canvas as you have those conversations!

Absolutely, I remember working with Adrean as this was being put together!

You 2:34 PM

It's still going strong! And always open to how it can evolve.

Gregorio Reyes | He/Him/His 2:35 PM

How do students get introduced to this support available to them @Jim Julius (he/him). Through their onboarding to MiraCosta or through professor's syllabi?

You 2:37 PM

@Gregorio Reyes | He/Him/His great question ... faculty who teach online classes are expected/required to share about student support opportunities online. So we do send reminders to faculty to share this with students. Students who attend the Student Online Academic Readiness (SOAR) workshop that I lead also get to see me demo it. (We get about 1000 attendees a year at that.) But I think there are opportunities for even broader and more coordinated promotion!

Gregorio Reyes | He/Him/His 2:38 PM

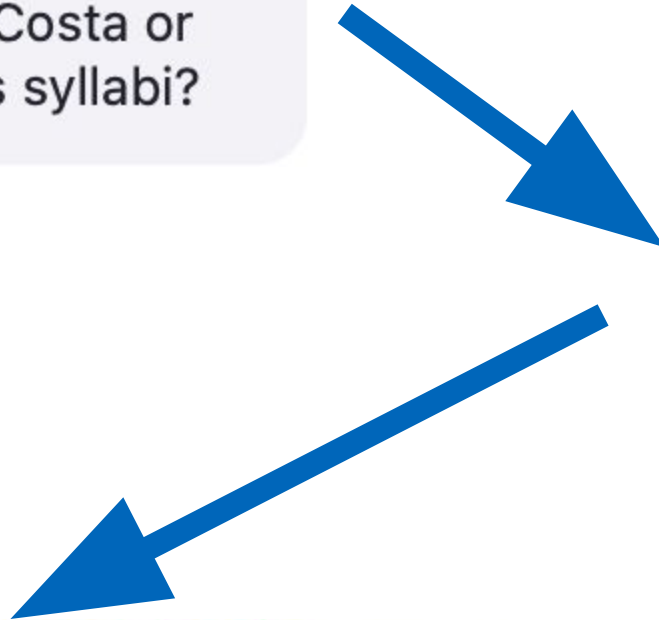

Too cool! Thank you for the info Jim :)

Notes on our processes

- Online Instructional Technologist is primarily responsible for interfacing with service areas to ensure information is up-to-date
- Some service areas are proactive about providing updated info (push), others need to be asked (pull)
- Would love to have this be a more automated workflow with a bit more quality control
- We (Online Ed) don't really have any control over what students experience once they've clicked through the Hub to a resource page or support interface
- Still no formal plan, process, or internal guide
- Promotion of the Hub is still driven by Online Ed

Chaffey College

Key Services and Support

- Find models elsewhere (shoutout to MiraCosta) to share as proof of concept and find counterparts at other institutions to support problem-solving
- Use Institutional Research data to assess and demonstrate need and regularly re-assess
- Start small–find faculty and manager champions in 2-3 areas (Tutoring, Counseling, Library)
- Work with people who want to work with you–the others will follow!

Steps to including key services

- Establish and communicate clear, baseline design criteria within DE Team
 - action-oriented (app experience), minimal clicks, similar look/platforms when possible on each area's support page, etc.
- Present, present, present to relevant admin, faculty, and staff (DE Committee, Academic Senate, Student Services, Counseling, Library, Marketing, Tutoring Centers)
- If possible, creatively find funds to incentivize any needed training or other costs to prototype. We were able to use part of a CTE Pathways grant, but there is also a case for equity funds or other grants
- Establish a workflow for how/when/who will update, marketing, updates, point people, etc.

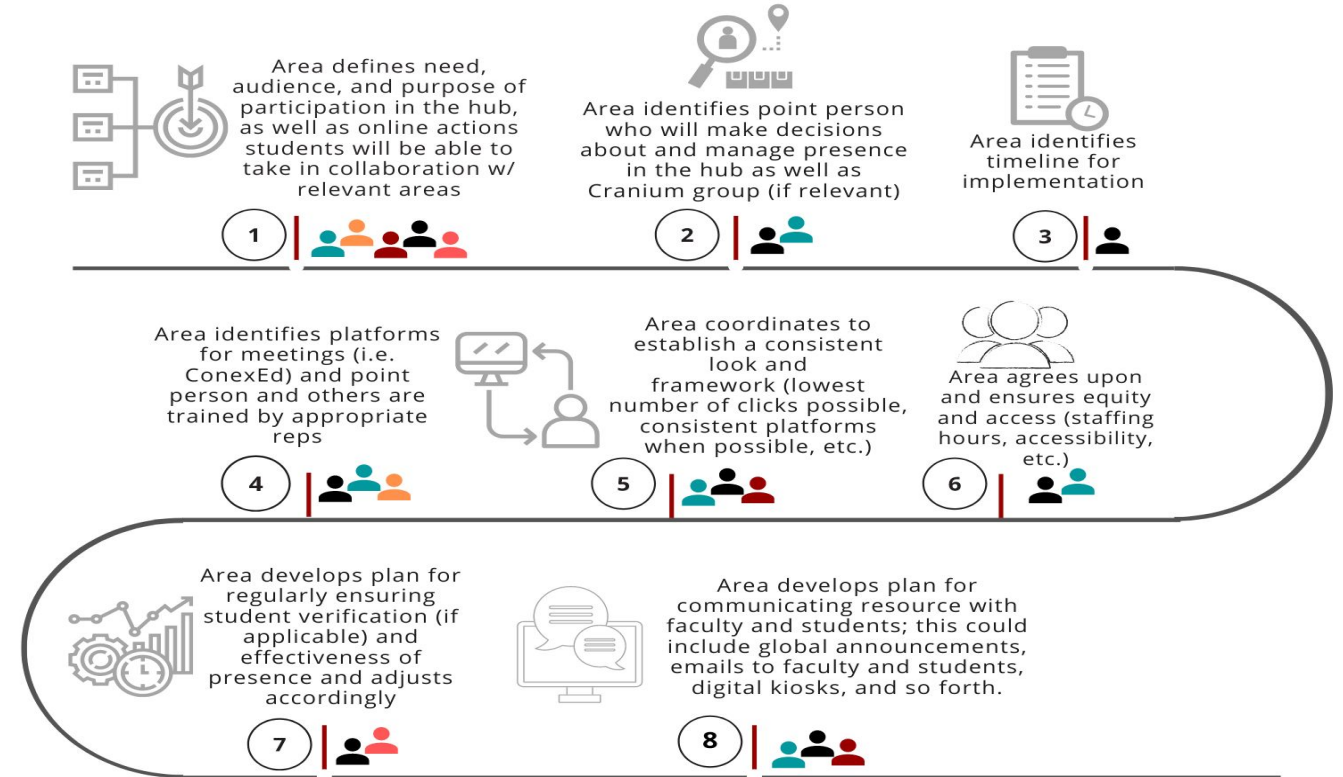

STUDENT SUPPORT HUB

SAMPLE WORKFLOW

Ideal workflow

- Ensure optimal student experience, integrity of, and access to the Hub
- Ensure all stakeholders feel invested and confident in their role and presence
- Reduce duplication of work, platforms, etc.

- Support/Service Area
- OE Team
- IT
- IR
- Marketing

Challenges/Opportunities

Challenge

- Turnover with managers and staff institutionally leads to gaps in updates and workflows
- Not a Distance Education initiative so much as an institutional need; can create issues with DE workload
- Unique cultures, workflows, experience with technology in each area make it difficult to establish consistent experience
- Staff and admin have fewer professional development opportunities at our institution
- Staff and faculty can feel frustrated with rapid changes to work

Opportunity

- With established workflow and updates, this can be readily communicated to new staff, faculty, and managers
- DE typically has a design and user experience approach that can influence other areas
- This occurs on campus as well; it's an opportunity to improve collaboration and reduce siloing
- Can bring to light the need for increased professional development opportunities (use of tech, accessibility, UX, etc.)
- With appropriate support and leadership, can be a growth opportunity

Why "Anyone"?

The screenshot shows a sharing dialog for a calendar titled "Spring Tutoring Schedule". At the top, there are icons for help and settings. Below is a search bar with the placeholder text "Add people, groups, and calendar events". Underneath, the "People with access" section lists "Lene Whitley-Putz (you)" with the email "lene.foothill@gmail.com" and the role "Owner". The "General access" section is highlighted and shows "Anyone with the link" with a dropdown arrow, and the role "Editor" with another dropdown arrow. Below this, it says "Anyone on the internet with the link can edit". At the bottom, there are two buttons: "Copy link" and "Done".
